Madrid students disturbed by presence of police

MADRID (CUP) — More than 3,000 students at Madrid University have protested against the University authorities for allowing police to enter the campus to break up student assemblies.

"Free assemblies" at which students have demanded freedom of speech and the right to form non-governmental student unions, have been suppressed at Madrid and Barcelona in recent months when university authorities called on police to forcibly end the meetings.

In a mass rally in the Faculty of Economics, the Madrid students decided to call for the removal of their Dean, the University Rector, and the Minister of Education.

In addition to protesting the Rector's refusal to recognize elected officials of the free student unions, Spanish students have been protesting their "poor morale and material situation."

They demanded a new university law and the abolition of "oppressive regulations.

UGEQ seeking to join international association

UGEQ plans to seek membership in the International Conference of Students, a union of western student bodies.

The question of UGEQ membership will be taken up at the ICS Congress in March. The only serious obstacle to membership is the stipulation that the organization must be truly representative of the nation as a necessary prerequisite for membership.

However, in accordance with the French definition of nation — which means a cultural, geographical entity — UGEQ asserts that it represents a national student constituency.

This bid for membership follows UGEQ's official acceptance as "associate" member of the International Union of Students, a Socialist body whose headquarters are in Prague.

The UGEQ executive stated that it wished to follow a policy of double affiliation in order to maintain an equilibrium in international affairs.

Aside from the national question, the constitution of the ICS corresponds in aims and policy to that of UGEQ. There are no political stipulations involved in joining.

The union is mainly cultural, providing its member bodies with seminars, periodicals and conferences, all of which stress the importance of international co-operation.

Viet Nam conflict said to be "war for self-determination"

by JUDY REBICK

"The war in Viet Nam is a war of the Vietnamese people for self-determination," says Ray Murphy.

"It is necessary to see the war as a national liberation struggle like all other liberation struggles. Considering it as a fight between the onsurge of Communism against the last stand of capitalism makes it difficult to understand why the Vietnamese fight the way they do."

This evaluation of the war in Viet Nam was expressed by Murphy, Editor of Scan Magazine in an interview with the Daily yesterday, after he had addressed a meeting of the Young Communist League.

Murphy had just returned from a 15-day trip to North Viet Nam as part of a three-man delegation from the Canadian Communist Party. While in Viet Nam, he met with several government officials, among them Ho Chi Minh, President of North Viet Nam.

Discussing American intervention in Viet Nam, Murphy said, "By its recklessness, the U.S. is on the verge of an irrational escalation which will culminate in a third world war.

"Moreover, the Americans are not improving their military position in Viet Nam but only succeeding in alienating the people of South-East Asia."

Murphy, who travelled extensively throughout North Viet Nam, was particularly impressed with the economic and cultural improvements that have taken place since the end of the conflict

SC to hear referendum report from Chief Returning Officer

by ELLEN ROSEMAN

The Students' Council meets tonight in the Union Boardroom to discuss the results of the recent UGEQ referendum.

In this referendum, held on January 26, 56.3% of the student body voted to opt out of the Quebec union.

The first referendum, held on December 1 of last year, was invalidated by the Students' Council because of election irregularities. Membership in UGEQ was over-ruled by only 51% in that vote.

Tonight the Council will hear the report on the referendum by Chief Returning Officer Glenn Christianson, and decide whether to accept or reject the results.

The SC will also discuss the proposed joint meeting of February 23 between Council and the Senate, and will vote on which topics should be brought up at this meeting.

Students' Society President Sharon Sholzberg said that one of the topics to be discussed is the seating of students on Senate committees. "This meeting will provide an opportunity for the Council to tell the Senate what it's doing wrong, and show how the two bodies can work together for greater co-operation."

Another item on the agenda is the consideration of a Student Disciplinary Committee, set up by the administration. This committee will deal with student offenders, and will be presided over by a Dean of Students to be appointed.

There will be a special report by Doug Meyer, head of World University Service in Canada. At present, McGill pays about $1200 a year to WUS, and Meyer will explain how it benefits the student body, and why it is necessary to remain a member.

Also to be discussed is the possible abolition of the annual Students' Society awards. Secretary-Treasurer Myron Galloway said that the SC is always accused of unfairness in the granting of these awards. "It is impossible for us to know about all the good work being done by everyone on campus".

Miss Sholzberg also mentioned that there would be a general proposal to re-evaluate Council methods and procedures. "We will take a new look at student government at McGill and work for greater democratization at all levels".

The meeting begins at 7 pm in the Boardroom and is open to the entire student body.

Annual Engineering Week begins

The Second Annual Engineering Week began yesterday, with the opening ceremonies in the lobby of the Macdonald Engineering Building. Dean Mordell, R.F. Shaw of Expo '67 and chairman Paul Stanfield officiated.

The purpose of Engineering Week is to provide the layman with a better understanding of the profession.

Besides the events taking place during the week, industrial exhibits and demonstrations will be presented by the Canadian Liquid Air Company, IBM, Surveyer, Nenninger & Chénevert, and Hydro-Québec.

Today there will be a broomball game against RVC on Lower Campus. Engineers must meet in front of the McConnell Building at 1 pm.

Tomorrow there will be an Engineering Week Banquet at the Holiday Inn at 6:30 pm. Guest will be N.R. Crump, President of CPR, who will speak on engineering opportunities in Canada.

Price is $4.50 for the public and $1.50 for engineers.

On Friday, Dr. Bull and Dean Mordell will speak on Project Harp at 1 pm in the McConnell Building, Room 304.

STAFFERS FOR THIS ISSUE

Episode three, obviously, is another example of things than can go wrong. Buffalo wading happily through copy at the magic hour, photogs folding on much-needed pics at the same time, Bob trying to phone a somewhat recalcitrant hack and Ellen pounding out still another rewrite. Pierre was overjoyed by the sight of no heads or cutlines, and from miles away, Mac's muttering about the time filtered through the early morning mists. Thanx to Joseph, Lazar, Irena, the incomparable Clara, "Jimmie", Anita, Mickey, Marc, Jumper, Irwin, Fennie and the Squire. Farewell, Honey. God bless Ace in the hole.

Something for no one

The proposal of membership in UGEQ for individual McGill students, first made last week in one of this journal's rival campus publications, is designed to appear attractive to everyone, both pro - and anti-UGEQ factions. It offers the former the opportunity to enjoy the benefits of UGEQ membership and ties in with the latter's ideas of open-shop-type individual freedom. As an example of fair play, it appeals to Anglo-Saxons of all races.

That this should win the approval of the editors of Resistance is not surprising. But that it should be mentioned seriously by Miss Sholzberg and Mr. Kingsbury is, we hope, only a reflection of the confusion generated by the recent campaigns.

We have twice examined what UGEQ has to offer us and found it wanting. We have been given an opportunity to express our solidarity with the majority in this province and rejected it. And now we want UGEQ to accept us — well, only a few of us because the rest are either not interested in or afraid of joining a Quebec student organization — on terms that conflict with everything UGEQ stands for.

Membership in UGEQ cannot be voluntary because membership in UGEQ is a necessary consequence of membership in Quebec society, and membership in Quebec society for students in Quebec's largest city is compulsory. Furthermore, UGEQ is a syndicalist organization. Its aims of social action and an effective government lobby can be achieved only if it represents all students within its realm. The open shop always works well for the capitalist.

Our position with respect to UGEQ is unclear and will remain so for some time. But the difficulties created by our decision will soon become apparent. Whatever our position is, it is one of weakness; our power to influence the thinking of the majority has been reduced to nothing.

This does not mean that co-operation is impossible. We have an instrument — the Students' Society, in which membership, fortunately, is not voluntary — through which we can take action on educational and social matters. Hopefully, there will be many times in the future when the Students' Society will take a stand beside UGEQ; the extent of our community of interest will eventually come to be realized.

But to ask UGEQ to accept just those of us who want to join is an incredible act of arrogance. It is a frightening reminder of how deep our misunderstanding of the implications of our minority position is. White Rhodesians ? Not so far fetched.

Eaterie

Dear Sir:

I recall that last term a number of our student body boycotted the present Union cafeteria's catering service protesting the firing of two of the latter's personnel for feeble reasons, and the non-union conditions under which the employees are working. The SC promised to investigate the matter but as yet there has been no word released to the campus. Presumably the UGEQ referendum has been occupying the total effort of the SC to date; now, however, the referendum is over and I would be very interested to hear what the SC has been able to research on the matter of our catering service.

Exposed Again

Dear Sir,

The Society for the Eradication of Larkspur on Lower Campus (SELLC) cannot protest strongly enough your intrusion in an area which had hitherto lain sacredly within its own inviolable jurisdiction. Not only have you taken it upon yourself in the editorial of 27 January to consider this question, you have advocated a course which no student beyond the lunatic fringe to which you so demonstrably belong would willingly choose.

We know, sir, of your membership in LL (the Larkspur League) and are now in the process of preparing a brief for submission to the correct authorities proving that your dedication to, training for and participation in the LL is professional by its very nature. In misusing the funds of the majority to represent the tiniest of minorities, you besmirch the name of our Queen of Colleges and well deserve the immediate dismissal our petition will demand.

You have refused to cover the activities of SELLC this year in your journal, and have given instead preference to "news" which you mistakenly believe will advance the LL. You are wrong, sir. History, in its inexorable march forward, in choosing what direction it will, must inevitably eradicate both you and your League. Nothing can save the 20th Century for the Larkspur.

Westham Bexly
Leader, SELLC.

Tammy Sparkle

Dear Sir:

Although my New Year Resolution is to use your columns as sparingly as possible I cannot help writing at this time to express my sincere appreciation of Mr. Simon Gichuru's contribution of today — the "Black Mercedes". Barring certain flaws of reasoning and semantics I honestly do feel that this is one of the best contributions ever to come from our camp.

Maybe I should say here that I have never compromised with or condoned corruption in politics, in private life or in examinations. In fact, my White Boss recommended the termination of my appointment as a Research Officer to the Nigerian Government simply because I spoke out and wrote against certain ills. He was successful, although it soon became clear that he was wrong. I won and I understand he has left the country. I am sure Nigerians are familiar with columns written and signed by "TAMMY SPARKLE".

Finally, the fascinating things about those of us that handle the bugs — Viruses and Bacteria — is that we could retire from the laboratory, chew Kola Nuts, float this with a really hot cup of Sanka Coffee, and take up politics as a hobby. I have no political ambition, and the Amachrees and the David-Wests are never in politics.

I am ready at any time to drink and toast to the admirable contribution of my African brother. Alas! over some pots of TOMBOO.

Open Channel

Dear Sir:

In Monday's Daily there was an article on McGill's future relations with French Canadian students. It was stated that McGill students are not represented in social welfare programs with the government such as Travailleurs Etudiants du Québec. Since the beginning of October three members of the External Affairs Department have been working steadily with T.E.Q. McGill is represented on the Selection Committee and the Co-ordinating Committee and has taken an active part in all important decisions of TEQ. An estimated twenty McGill Students have passed the preliminary acceptance stage as "Travailleurs" for next summer. In all aspects of its work TEQ has cooperated with McGill and has provided an important channel of communication with French Canadian students.

Bert Kidd
Chairman, McGill Social Development Committee.

Unity Needed

Dear Sir,

It has occurred to me that on many specific occasions the Daily has been used for personal attacks by individuals. I have also observed of late that the same Daily has been used by certain individuals to insult and abuse some African National Leaders and their countries. For instance, Mr. Mohiddin, has in two recent articles insulted Nigeria under the pretext of academic discussion. The most recent was published in the Daily of January 28 in which he stated that Nigeria is "... the most corrupt and inefficient country in Africa". It is very disappointing that the Daily does in fact aid and abet this trend. I am suggesting very strongly that this should be stopped, otherwise, it may develop into a bigger conflict and estranged relationships. Although the general views expressed by Nigerian students on campus is to IGNORE the writer and his insulting references to Nigeria, which in any case were COWARDLY expressed under the cover of an academic discussion, I feel that I should register my strongest objection as an individual. I presume to suspect that Mr. Mohiddin's bitterness against Nigeria, may be due at least in part, to certain differences within the African Students' Association. But I think it would be more responsible and a healthier situation if every African student on campus should co-operate with any President of the Association no matter where he comes from. This will ensure African unity. But if we cannot do this I suggest that the ASA should be discontinued. This will certainly be a shame, since it will conclusively show that Africans cannot unite. And if we cannot unite even on a University campus I do not see any hope for the Organisation of African Unity.

Adetayo A. Oyemade
Lagos, Nigeria.

Right To Work

Dear Sir,

A most ridiculous and intolerable situation has arisen of late on our Campus. I am referring of course to that most inefficient institution commonly exaggerated to be the McGill Placement Service.

No one will deny the exhilarating physical aspects of trudging up the University Street hill in ten degree weather. But surely once that feat has been accomplished in vain three times in two weeks, something has to give. That something is my patience.

On Friday, January 21, I first wended my way up to the Placement Service at approximately three-thirty in the afternoon. Upon arrival I was informed that applications for summer employment could only be filled out between one and three o'clock and since I was late, I should return next week. The following Tuesday I returned and was greeted with the statement that applications were only given out on Fridays. So I braved the cold once more on Friday and arrived at about half-past one. This time I was told that all applications for the next week's interviews were filled and that apparently I should sit on the steps of the service commencing at about half-past ten the next Friday to guarantee the submission of my name for an interview. Pointing out that I had arrived at the appointed time and the specified date, I was amazed to learn that I could not fill out an application because there was a definite number of interviews one man could conduct in a week.

Surely something could be done to remedy this situation. More than one interviewer could be employed. Times for submitting applications could be set aside on three or four weekdays. Interviews could be planned weeks in advance. All these cures would prevent the student from making his present weekly pilgrimage to the service that will probably not get him a summer job anyway.

Victoria SC survives vote

VICTORIA (CUP) — A vote of non-confidence in the University of Victoria Students' Council was overwhelmingly defeated at a general meeting of students held on January 27.

Nearly 400 students gathered in the University gymnasium to vote on the motion after a petition signed by 157 students was presented to the Council on January 23. The petition claimed the Council had negligently misled the students in the recent fee fight.

About 700 students had withheld $56 of their second term fees before the Council announced they should pay in full on January 21, the date set by the Board of Governors, rather than wait until next year's fee levels were announced.

The Council had promised to pay the $10 late fine for students withholding fees, but announced on January 20 that a legal complication prohibited this. They then set up a "Committee of 56" to raise funds to pay the $7,000 in late fines by appeals to student councils and labour groups.

Accused of abandoning the fee campaign, student president Paul Williamson replied, "the drive was absolutely not a flop."

Despite federal increase

Universities need provincial grants

OTTAWA (CUP) — The federal government's increase in aid to universities does not alter the need for increased provincial grants, university presidents and students agreed across Canada.

University of Toronto President Claude Bissell was echoed by many when he said Jan. 21 that the raise in the per capita operating grant from $2 to $5 was a very good first step, but other steps were needed immediately.

Speaking for the Canadian Union of Students, Vice-President Richard Good pointed out that the Bladen Report had called for a federal grant of $6 per capita for the coming year merely to maintain present conditions.

He said: "The federal government's reluctance to measure up to the minimum standards is most distressing. I hope that a federal-provincial conference will be held as soon as possible with a view to further increases in operating grants."

Dr. Geoffrey Andrew, executive secretary of the Association of Universities and Colleges said there would still be time to readjust federal per capita grants for 1966-67 after the coming federal-provincial conference, even if it were not held until late spring.

He stressed the question of provincial grants, saying: "I am encouraged that this interim action was taken early enough to allow for provinces and universities to plan for the 1966-7 academic year."

President Bissell said that provinces must also raise grants. "This is no essential change in the relative position of the various financial sources for budgetting."

He indicated that the provinces should now be in a position to support all the legitimate demands of universities.

Bissell urged an immediate similar increase in capital grants. "The need in that area is of an emergency nature if we are to keep to our plans for expansion, particularly in the graduate schools".

Richard Good of CUS said the problem of student aid was important also. "If the government is prepared to take this interim step on operating grants, then surely it can take immediate interim action in the field of student assistance by means of a further increase in the per capita grant," he said.

Chessmen tied in tournament

A team of McGill chess players tied for first place in the Eastern Canada Inter-Collegiate Chess Championship matches held at the University of Toronto this past weekend.

The McGill team members participating in the tournament were Bob Leckie, Peter Murray, Herschel Mednick, Dave McPherson, Sheldon Brown, Marcel Strigberger, Morris Schneiderman, and Kirwan Cox.

Both McGill and the University of Toronto received 36½ points, while U of M gained 35 points, Queen's 21, Waterloo 16½, Carleton 16, and Royal Military College 6 points.

Although McGill and Toronto scored equally, Toronto was declared the winner of the championship on the basis of a decision of the adjudicators.

The matches were played for three solid days from January 28-30. Each game lasted four hours, and the team played a total of 142 hours.

with France in 1954. He said that illiteracy has been almost completely abolished, and that universities, which did not exist under French occupation, had been set up.

Describing the attitude of the Vietnamese, he said, "The Vietnamese don't recognize that there are two countries. Talking about the North Vietnamese and the South Vietnamese is almost a ludicrous situation . . . there isn't even a difference in dialect.

"We weren't conscious of any animosity between the North and South Vietnamese. They consider themselves one nation. In fact, they have more of a sense of national identity than we Canadians have."

He added that the war has had the effect of solidarizing the people with the government. He compared it to the Battle of Britain where the people of England were unified in the face of strong opposition. "The war cuts across class lines and becomes a question of national survival."

COMPUTER PROGRAMMERS

The Computation Centre, National Research Council, requires the services of computer programmers who hold a pass level degree in mathematics or mathematics and physics from a recognized university. Salary will depend on qualifications and relevant experience. Programming experience is desirable but not essential. 1965 pass graduates who possess a strong background in mathematics but who have no programming experience may expect an initial salary of approximately $5,500 per annum. Applicants should write to the Employment Officer, National Research Council, Ottawa and give an outline of their education and experience. Please quote competition no. ER-349.

CICERI TO READ POETRY

The Literary Society will present Canadian actor Leo Ciceri in an evening of poetry readings, tonight at 8:30 pm in the Leacock Auditorium.

Ciceri will read from W.H. Auden's oratorio, "For the Time Being"; G.M. Hopkins' "The Wreck of the Deutschland"; A.A. Milne's "Christopher Robin"; and T.S. Eliot's "The Wasteland", as well as from Chekhov, e.e. cummings, John Donne, Shakespeare and the Bible.

The Montreal-born Ciceri has starred on Broadway, and played the role of King Henry IV in Stratford last summer. He also played Hamlet at the now-defunct Montreal Repertory Theatre in 1960, and appeared recently in the CBC Festival production of "The Ideal Husband" by Oscar Wilde.

Admission is free for Literary Society members and 50¢ for non-members.

Queen's students increase own fees

KINGSTON (CUP) — Students at Queen's University have voted for an extra $10 student fee to help finance a theatre-concert hall complex here.

The project, which will cost at least $3,000,000, became an issue when the administration said that plans would have to be drastically curtailed due to lack of funds.

The $10 increase, to last for 25 years, was approved by a vote of 1,033 to 919.

Those supporting the move predicted that matching grants would be available from private sources if students paid a share of the cost.

Some students, opposing the fee raise, argued that the administration should be persuaded to alter its priorities for spending.
